Addendum to the West Coast Rugby Football Union submission on TIGA resource consent application

The West Coast Rugby Football Union (WCRFU) administers our game in the West Coast region for the primary purpose of promoting and growing the game of rugby on behalf of its 1,100 registered players. The WCRFU was formed in 1890, during these times it has seen surges in player numbers and enhanced sporting opportunities on the back of successful industries in the region. The WCRFU has 6 active clubs across the region, with strong junior and senior competitions as well as competing in the Heartland Championship.

The WCRFU supports new industries like the TIGA Mineral and Metals project that provides employment opportunities for the people in the region. Industries like this project provides opportunities that support families that participate in our game and provide economic resilience in what are tough economic times.
